

ANTIPSYCHIATRIC ATTITUDES IN OUR MENTAL HEALTH SERVICE

1

Musli Ferati,

1

Psychiatric Department-Clinical Hospital, Tetova, Macedonia

ABSTRACT

An autocritic perception:

In this paper we had to brand some primitive state of psychiatrist as chief carries in our Mental Health Service. It is evidence that our Mental Health Service is profoundly out of date, against epochal progress of the same in developed countries. Our Psychiatric Service is overload with many trivial as well mediaeval attitudes and antipsychiatric manners of proceeding in entirely mental health care.

Principal antipsychiatric vectors:

On the contrary that the reasons are manifold, they are divided in two groups of causal factors: intramedicinal and extramedicinal ones. We have to discuss for the first ones; which are divided into intrapsychiatric and extrapsychiatric. For the first ones the Psychiatrist are responsible to manage professionally their mission in the up to date treatment of psychiatric patients.

Conclusions:

We believe that an active and offensive approach of psychiatric establishment is a good and promising initiative for developing of outstanding Mental Health Service. It is obvious that our mental health service suffer of a tremendously public disparagement. It ought to understand the current knowleges upon Mental Health as a foundation of individual and community biopsychosocial wellbeing. Definively the psychiatry is medical branch, though other societal, philosophical and psychological sciences are deeply implicated in current management of mentaly ill subjects.

Key words:

Mental Health Service, primitive and mediavalistic attitudes, extra and intramedical factors, understanding of the knowleges.

Author address:

Musli Ferati, psychiatrist

Psychiatrist Department-Cilical Hospital, Tetovë, Macedonia

Tel.+389(0)71 224 132

E-mail:drferati@gmail.com